The Little Boot.

Dumpy, stubby and old, The funniest little boot, With mended toe and flattened beel, Ever worn by a little foot. Within the children's room

The lonely mother stands.

Still smiling down with misty eyes

On a little boot in her hands. Carefully laid away, With a mother's yearning care,

Are tows with which the children played, The clothes they used to wear. With loving, longing heart, Her gaze is backward cant, As she softly lifts the little boot

From the stillness of the past, She sees a little boy Thrust out his chubby foot, And hears his happy laugh and shout At night of his first boot.

and, trudging down the road, Stubbing grass, and leaves and roots, She sees again the solid forta Of the little man in boots.

A conqueror that day, He made the soft airs ring : Amid the shoeless lade at school The boy in boots was king.

O the stillnes of the room Where the children used to play ! O the stillness of the empty house Since the children went away !

Amid the world's unequal strife

Are the feet of manhood strong

For manhood's sacred race,

To clasp its utmost grace?

With love her heart o'erflows,

With love her eyes are dim,

the softly wraps the little boot

And sends it far to him.

The eyes of manhood scan

The ancient boot-the far-off box

The boy's boot never pressed

The man sees all things changed-

The earth, the heaven above;

To him-his mother's love.

He takes as from her hand

The battered little boot

Better to understand.

Dumpy, stubby and old,

The funniest little boot,

Ever worn by a little foot!

Yet the boot is a band to bind

The man to his innocent past,

To hold his faithful heart of hearts

To life's first love-and its last !

One thing alone remains the same

And seems all sweetest, purest things,
